REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Two hundred and thirty-six different scholars have received instruction in the different schools of New-London during the past year. Of these, one hundred and thirty-five are boys, and one hundred and one are girls. In the west district the number of boys and girls who have attended school is equal; but in all the other districts the boys numerically predominate.

In sustaining these schools the town has appropriated from the

Literary fund,	$37 20
Town fund,	24 00
Taxes,	684 64
<hr/>
Total cash expenditures	745 84
Estimated appropriations by several districts for board,	144 00
<hr/>
Aggregate expenses,	889 84

Average on each scholar, $3 77.

The text-books authorized for use in the school are the Bible, Town's Readers and Spellers, Colton and Fitch's Geography, Robinson's Arithmetics, Kerl's Grammar, and Quackenbos' History of the United States. In addition to instruction from these several text-books, lessons have been given, in one or two of the smaller schools, to a few pupils in Algebra and Physiology.

WEST DISTRICT, NO. 1.

The summer term of ten weeks was taught by Miss Lillie M. Sargent. Average attendance, 14; whole number, 17; in reading and spelling, 16; penmanship, 9; arithmetic, 10; algebra, 1; grammar, 5; geography, 8; composition, 5; instances of tardiness, 17; of dismissals, 11; of corporal punishment, none. The statistics of the eleven weeks of the winter term, which was creditably and successfully conducted by Mr. J. W. Russell, are nearly the same. At the several visitations of the school your committee found in both terms uniform good order, and in the several classes indications of commendable progress. The citizens of this district manifest a growing interest in their school. The youth and children are generally characterized by good behavior, regular attendance at school, and diligence in study.

BURPEE HILL DISTRICT, NO. 2.

In this school a favorable change has been wrought during the past year. A mutual good understanding has seemed to exist between parents and teachers. Miss G. Sargent, of the summer term, whose works praise her, returns her sincere thanks to the parents for their hearty co-operation. The service of Mr. N. Howard Jones, in the winter, met the approval of your committee, and is gratefully appreciated by both pupils and parents. All the classes did well—the first class in arithmetic especially. Whole number of scholars, 34; average attendance, 30; instances of tardiness, 28; in reading and spelling, 34; penmanship, 21; arithmetic, 24; geography, 17; grammar, 6; composition, 4.

Let no mention be made of the dilapidated school-house,—that standing reproach to the wealth, enterprise, and intelligence of the district. In behalf of both teachers and scholars the superintending committee earnestly pleads for a better house.

CENTRAL DISTRICT, NO. 3.

By reason of the unfortunate disappearance of the Register for the summer term, the report is necessarily imperfect. Miss Hunt, the teacher, however, labored assiduously, and with encouraging success. Prior to the opening of the winter term by Mr. Frank Hiland, the duty was particularly enjoined on him of keeping good order in the school. He kept good order, and possibly, in a few instances, with no excess of lenity. Forty-two scholars attended to reading and spelling, and, in nearly all cases, with marked progress. In no term for many years has this school presented a fairer appearance, or been more successfully conducted. A serious drawback, however, upon the interests of the school, were the multiplied cases of tardiness, amounting in ten weeks to 179. Among the scholars, the highest rank attained by constant attendance, invariable punctuality, diligent study, correct deportment, and general faithfulness, belongs unmistakably to Master Fred. A. Clement. One only of the fathers in this district, Reuben Call, visited the school during the winter term.

LOW PLAIN DISTRICT, NO. 4.

Miss L. M. Addison, of the first term, reports the number of scholars in reading and spelling, 19; penmanship, 7; arithmetic, 9; grammar, 1; history, 1; and geography, 2. A little increase of enthusiasm in the teacher would have improved the character of the school. The winter term of eleven weeks was efficiently conducted by Mr. N. C. Todd, whose abilities as a teacher have long been favorably known and appreciated, and whose report speaks creditably of both parents and scholars. In the final examination, marked proficiency was exhibited by the advanced classes in arithmetic.

SCYTHEVILLE DISTRICT, NO. 5.

The first term of ten weeks was conducted by Miss A. J. Davis. Number of scholars, 31; average attendance, 29; in reading and spelling, 31; penmanship, 7; arithmetic, 20; grammar, 3; and geography, 7. The examinations were creditable to both teacher and scholars. The statistics of the second term, in which Miss A. E. Burpee presided, are nearly the same. In this term the discipline required improvement; but the teacher labored assiduously, and eagerly sought the advancement of her pupils.

NORTH DISTRICT, NO. 6.

The summer term, by Miss M. J. Huntton, and the winter term, by Miss A. O. Pattee, were both well managed. Good order, diligence in study, fair progress, and commendable examinations characterized each term. Whole number of scholars, 17; average attendance, 12; in reading and spelling, 17; penmanship, 13; arithmetic, 13; grammar, 5; geography, 9; composition, 1; instances of tardiness in second term, 32.

PLEASANT STREET DISTRICT, NO. 7.

The first term was conducted by Miss A. O. Pattee, and the other by Miss E. Buswell. In both terms the discipline was good, and the efforts of the teachers successful. Whole number of scholars, 17; average attendance, 14; instances of tardiness in one term, 26; number in reading and spelling, 17; penmanship, 7; arithmetic, 10; grammar, 3; geography, 5; composition, 4; history, 3. Twelve pupils, in one term, were, on no occasion, absent.

*Deceased.

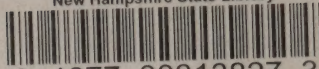

The failure of several other scholars has consisted solely, either in occasional tardiness, or in protracted absence during a portion of a term. Many of the smaller scholars bid fair to raise their names to the roll of honor, as soon as they attain the requisite age.

Respectfully submitted.

LUCIAN HAYDEN,
Superintending School Committee.
